

The Psychology of Women

Fall 2015 - PSY 394, 79742

Taught by Prof. Marisol Perez

Mon & Wed 3:00 – 4:15 PM

Life Sciences E 106

This class will provide an in-depth introduction to the diversity of women and describe ways in which cultures (including American culture) shape women's experiences. In other words, how have the societal scripts of gender behavior influence women's everyday and future decisions? This class fulfills a Social & Behavioral Science degree requirement.

Prerequisites: PSY 101 (with a C or higher) and minimum of 30 completed credits.
